MASTER OF COUNSELING (CLINICAL MENTAL HEALTH) [CMHC]

The Master of Counseling (Clinical Mental Health) (CMHC) is a 63-credit-hour program designed to prepare students to become licensed professional mental health counselors. The curriculum is structured based on the Training Standards and Qualifications for Counselors with a Major Focus Area by the Malaysian Board of Counselors (2016) and the Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Education Programs (CACREP). This program integrates theory and clinical training across different settings:

- 30% classroom learning
- 40% laboratory training
- 30% workplace/industry training

In line with the standards of the Malaysian Board of Counselors, CACREP, and the university's training objectives, the KKMK program prepares students to work with diverse populations in various settings. The practicum and internship experiences represent the culmination of a counselor's education, where trainees apply theoretical knowledge and counseling skills directly in real-world settings, producing knowledgeable, skilled, and professional clinical mental health counselors who meet the national workforce needs.

1.1 Internship

The internship is a supervised post-practicum clinical experience aimed at refining, enhancing, and strengthening the application of counseling knowledge and skills in professional training settings (Malaysian Board of Counselors Training Standards and Qualifications, 2016). This clinical experience includes direct mental health counseling as well as other activities related to clinical mental health counseling.

According to CACREP (Section 3: Professional Practice, 2016), both practicum and internship are professional training experiences that facilitate the application of counseling theories and skill development under supervision. This experience provides students with the opportunity to conduct counseling sessions with clients representing diverse ethnic and demographic backgrounds within their communities.

1.2 Internship Objectives

The primary objective of the internship is to provide hands-on training to counselor trainees by offering high-quality supervised professional counseling experiences consistent with the academic preparation, university/program goals, and career objectives of the counselor trainees. This experience aims to help counselor trainees develop competencies by applying theoretical knowledge and integrating clinical skills under the supervision of experienced and qualified professionals.

2.0 Clinical Mental Health Counseling Internship (KKP60306)

The Clinical Mental Health Counseling Internship (KKP60306) at UPSI provides trainees with opportunities to engage in clinical training in mental health settings, focusing on:

- Case conceptualization
- Case formulation
- Diagnostics
- Treatment planning
- Interventions

Trainees will receive clinical supervision from both academic and field supervisors who are professionals in the mental health field. In accordance with the Malaysian Board of Counselors' qualification standards, trainees must complete a total of 504 internship hours, which include:

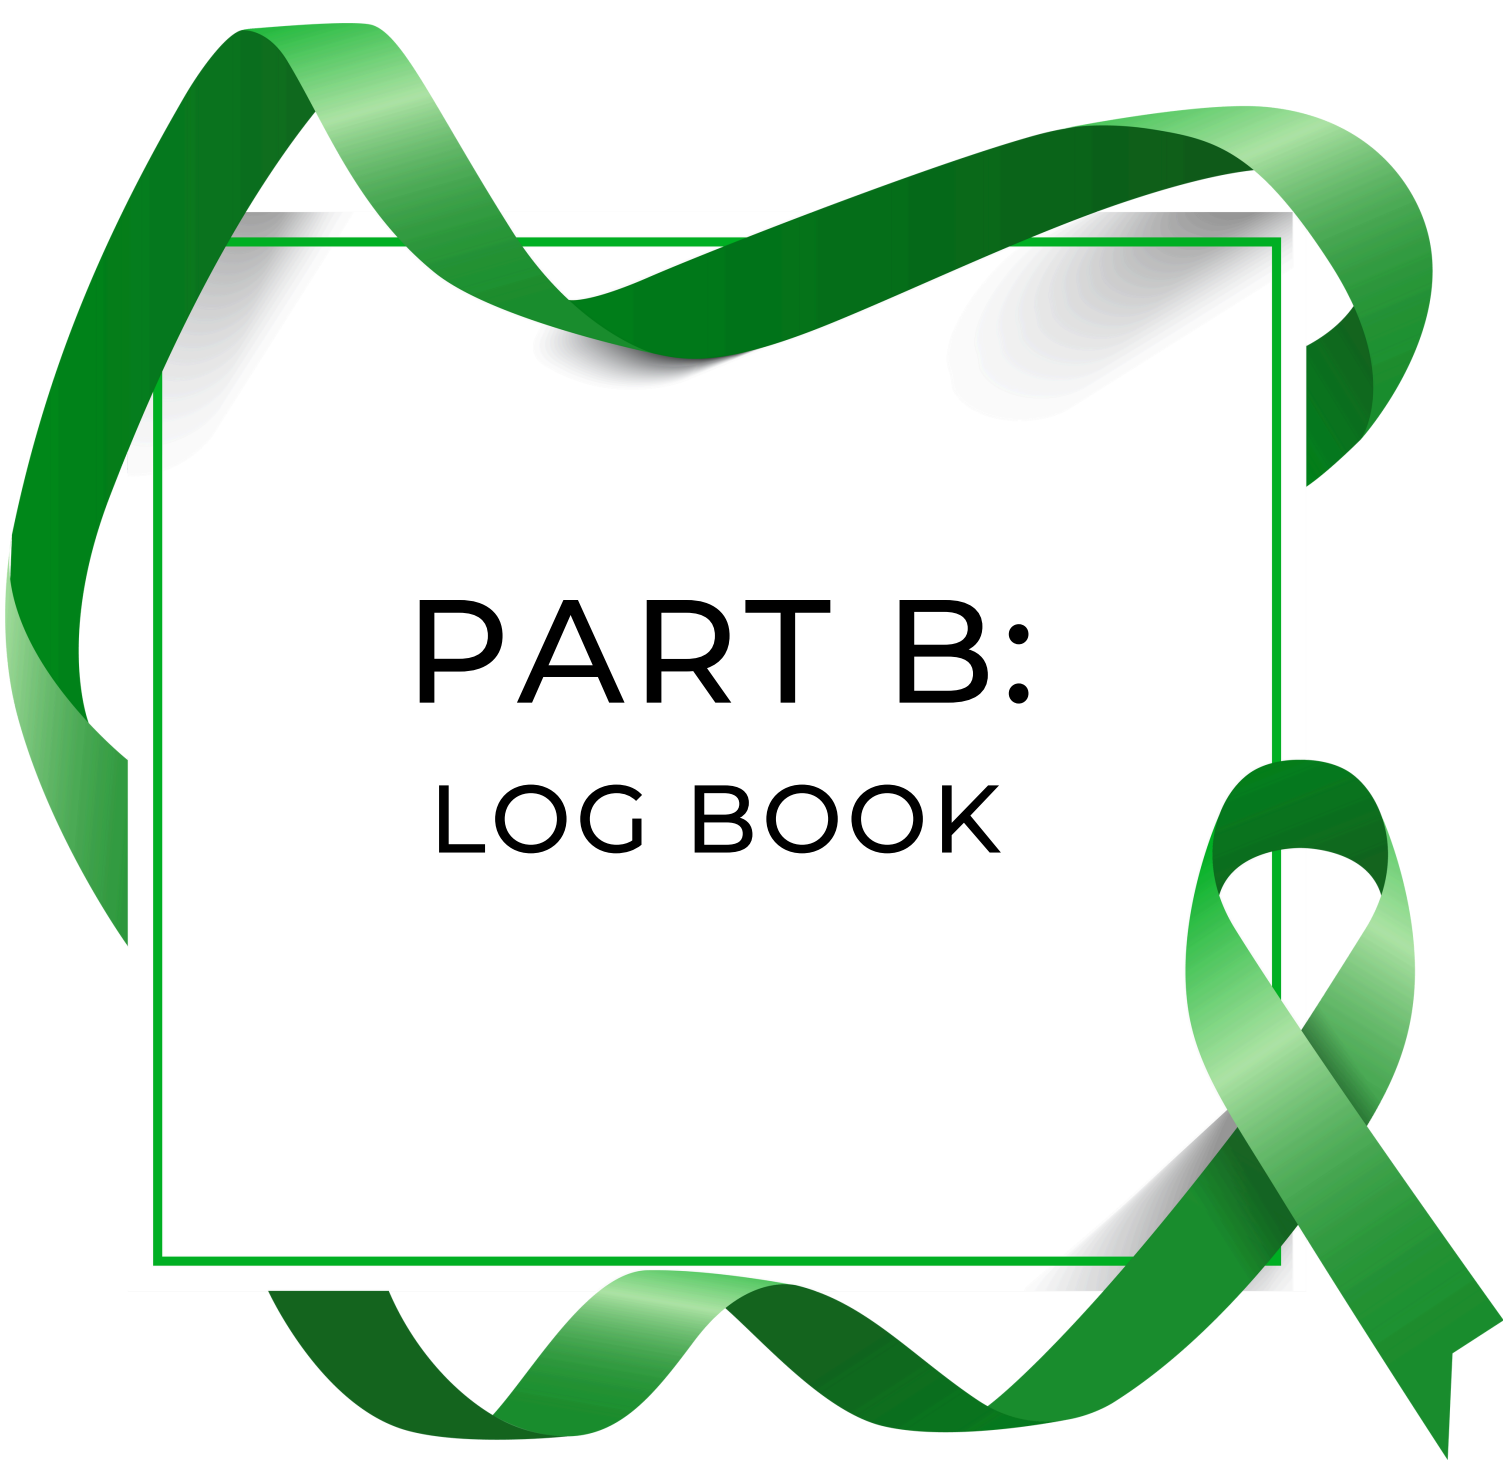

- 192 direct face-to-face counseling service hours
- 112 hours of professional counselor-related activities
- 200 hours of case management and administrative work

The internship process involves hands-on learning, experiential training, didactic instruction, and case presentations, allowing trainees to refine, enhance, and strengthen their application of knowledge, skills, and professional counseling practices in an ethical and culturally competent manner.

At the end of the internship course, trainees are expected to be able to:

- Apply theories, principles, and practices of assessment, diagnosis, intervention, referral, and prevention of mental and emotional disorders in individual and group counseling sessions.
- Conceptualize mental health diagnoses using DSM-5-TR based on background information, assessments, clinical interviews, and relevant informant reports.
- Promote human development, well-being, and optimal mental health through prevention, education, and advocacy activities for career development in clinical mental health counseling.
- Select appropriate assessment and intervention techniques to facilitate diagnosis, treatment planning, and effective case management.
